Mandatory for all SNOs whose approved work assignment requires white skirt, pants or pants. Benefits for military clothing Definitions Three basic types of subsidies Initial clothing subsidies are granted to enlisted members at the time of enlistment or other special qualification to be entitled to a prescribed uniform. The initial emission can be a species emission or a combination of emission in kind and cash payment. Cash subsidies for the replacement of clothing are granted to affiliates in the month of the anniversary of each consecutive year after the initial grant for clothing. Cash clothing substitution subsidies are intended for the replacement of uniform articles required on the basis of normal wear. Supplementary subsidies for clothing are added to initial and substitution subsidies and do not reduce them, replace or otherwise affect extraordinary benefits for pre-conditions unusual circumstances in which an enlisted member may need additional uniforms or when an officer (with a permanent destination place outside the United States) or an enlisted member may need civil clothing to perform the functions that have been assigned. Cash clothing replacement subsidy (only for enrolled members) Basic cash clothing replacement subsidy is a preliminary substitution subsidy for uniform articles. It is used during the first three years of active service after receiving an initial uniform performance for clothing or a reduced or partial uniform initial performance for clothing. Standard cash provision for replacement Dress up predicted by the substitution of uniform articles after having fulfilled three active service years after receiving a standard performance for garment or a reduced or partial standard benefits for clothing . It is also used as a preliminary substitution subsidy during the first years of active service after receiving a special initial subsidy for clothing dress up A special or partial initial clothing allowance. The special cash replacement allowance provides for the replacement of uniform items with three years of active service after receiving a special initial clothing allowance. It accumulates starting with the first day of the month after the date on which the member completes the active service of 36 months and is after receiving a special initial clothing allowance or a special or partial initial clothing allowance, without taking into account the time lost, and continues for the rest. Continuous active service period. It is paid annually at the end of the service member ' s anniversary month, using the applicable tax year rate. During the period for which the special cash replacement allowance is paid, the Service Member is not entitled to any other cash replacement allowance. Additional clothing allowances Additional clothing allowances are provided, in addition to any other allocation. The right to or payment of an additional clothing allowance does not replace or reduce any other clothing allowance. Supplementary clothing allowances are additional to any other authorized clothing allowance. An enlisted member may receive a supplementary clothing allowance. This assignment may be authorized only for an enlisted member assigned to the law in a special organization or detail where the duty required, such as a military requirement, additional quantities or special items of individual uniform clothing not required for the most enlisted members in the same service. . Except for maternity uniforms, supplementary clothing allowances may not exceed 30 per cent of the current value of standard initial clothing assignment. Assignments of civil clothing Civil clothing for officers and staff are also any other authorized clothing allowance. Service members (official/enlisted) led by the competent authority to dress in civil clothing more than half of the time when performingDuty, as a military requirement, may be authorized to allocate civilian clothing. An officer is authorized to assign civilian clothing only if his permanent station is outside the United States. U.S. For any period, an enlisted member is on an assignment that requires civilian clothing, the replacement allowance applicable to uniform elements continues. The Secretary of Service or Commander of the Marine Corps may prescribe the reduction of civilian clothing benefits, as appropriate for their respective service. Temporary civil clothing allowances are generally for when the allocation of civil life-saving garments is not applicable. Temporary clothing allowance has two maximum rates, for a temporary duty of at least 15 days within any period of 30 days and for a temporary duty of at least 30 days within any period of 36 months. The total civil clothing rights payable in any period of 36 months may not exceed the maximum allowed for the temporary duty of at least 30 days.
